Water and sand are a perfect combination that gives children manipulative play, and a chance to be extraordinarily creative making sand castles, sand figures, road beds, mountains, tunnels, and all kinds of other play scenes.

Our Bubbling Rock, which comes with a hose fitting at the bottom of the rock, can be hooked up to a hose coming from a spigot on your building (you should run it in a shallow trench, or make it more permanent with PVC pipe).

You can then adjust the spigot/faucet to provide a gentle flow of water bubbling out of the top of a real rock that can be placed in a sand play area, or in a rain garden, or anywhere else you want a gentle supply of fresh water.

Some of our customers have made the Bubbling Rock an integral part of their landscaping, using it as the source of water for a small brook, for instance (see image).

The Bubbling Rock is a real rock (not a fake one), it looks beautiful, it makes for great conversation, and the sand or dirt it gets wet provides endless, creative play.

Rock weighs 35-50 pounds depending on its size.
