Many of our customers have asked for a less expensive, portable option for bringing water to an area.

Our new Water Station hooks up to a regular garden hose under its base, and has a handle on the backside so the Station can be easily picked up and moved to another location.

The neat thing, is that there is a spigot on the side with a simple quarter turn for on or off, so there is no unnecessary waste!

This takes the place of a hose lying on the ground with a spray head attached that's difficult for kids to control. It's either on full blast and getting water everywhere, or it's off, which also makes it difficult for one child/person to fill a bucket, or get a drink.

So if you can't afford our elegant, easy-to-use, stainless steel water pump, this is a really inexpensive, yet perfect way to control the location of and use of water on your site!

Freezing winter weather? Just unscrew, drain, and store the hose, and carry this light weight Water Station inside where it's warm.
